An Omission Supplied.

To the Editor.

In your issue of Saturday, in giving the names of the female graduates in medicine of the Howard university, the name of Dr. Carothe Howard university, the name of Dr. Caroline L. Burghardt was omitted—inadvertently, I assume. The university loses a reflected honor in the omission, as Dr. Burghardt's personal and professional character is such that her alma mater may well be proud of her child. Mass Burghardt formerly lived in Massachusetts, and was a particule and faithful murse in the hospitals and upon the fields of battle during the war, and Washington has many witnesses of her unitring devotion as such. She graduated from the Howard university in the class of 1878.
